Friday Memo

May 11, 2018

Happy Friday, I hope you've all had a great week!

Our Design-Build entity of Clark/Sullivan Construction and Lionakis architects continued their strong tradition of community engagement at Dyer-Kelly Elementary School on Wednesday night at the school's science fair. Lionakis set up a virtual reality booth so that students and parents could tour their future campus, and Clark/Sullivan set up a photo booth for students in front of a rendering of the school. It's always great to see our construction partners making these connections at our school sites.

Speaking of Dyer-Kelly, our team also selected colors and patterns for the internal spaces of the "academic neighborhoods" and will coordinate that with the furniture and other geographical themes that will create fun and welcoming hallways and classrooms. We can't wait to show you those concepts as they develop.

On Wednesday, I met with our Technology Services department and am excited to be launching our new PM Web software for project management. In order to make sure all our needs are met, we will be working directly with Cathie Browning in Technology Services as her position is partially dedicated to our department.

Due to vacations and conferences, the next Friday Memo will be sent out on June 1.

Have a great weekend,

Brett A. Mitchell
